ザ・ビッグ・ピクチャー: 習近平の中国とそれが 米台中関係に意味すること The Big Picture:

China Under Xi and What It Means for the US-Taiwan-China Relations

【報告者 / Speaker】 ウィリアム・スタントン William A. Stanton(司徒文) (元米外交官, 前AIT台北事務所長, 台湾大学国際学院教授)

Summary

As Xi Jinping has consolidated his power in China, he has also initiated increasingly aggressive policies abroad, including the One Belt-One Road plan, the militarization of the South China Sea, and ever greater pressure directed against Taiwan. In response, U.S. policy under President Trump toward both China and Taiwan has been erratic and contradictory. On the one hand, U.S. support for Taiwan, both political and and bureaucratic, including concrete measures to bolster our relationship is unprecedented. On the other hand, Trump has often undermined this support in pursuit of an illusory "friendship" with Xi Jinping. As a result, if "push comes to shove," it is by no means clear Taiwan can rely on the Unite States.
